

MOTHER OF MAL DAUGHERTY IS DEAD

94-YEAR-OLD WOMAN TAKEN BY PNEUMONIA

Death of Aged Lady Follows Relapse on Monday in Washington C. H.

TRIAL IS DELAYED

Both Harry and Mal Present at Time of Death

WASHINGTON, C. H., O., Feb. 24.—Mrs. Jane Daugherty, 94-year-old mother of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States, and of Mal S. Daugherty, who is on trial in common pleas court here in connection with the closing of the Ohio State Bank, died here today from pneumonia.

The death of the aged woman occurred after a relapse yesterday which resulted in an unexpected adjournment of her son's trial on charges of misappropriation of funds of the banking institution of which he was once president.

TRIAL DELAYED
The former banker received word of his mother's serious condition and arrangements were made for an adjournment of the trial until today.

"In view of Mrs. Daugherty's death, Judge Charles Bell announced at the opening session of court this morning that the trial of Mal Daugherty would be postponed until 10 a. m. Friday."

Mrs. Daugherty had been ill for some time. Due to her advanced age she was unable to withstand the attack of pneumonia. Her condition became gradually worse yesterday.

Although she rallied shortly after the appearance of her sons, Harry and Mal, her condition began to decline again last night and she died at six o'clock this morning.

BOTH PRESENT
Both of her sons were at Mrs. Daugherty's bedside when the end came.

The aged lady, according to members of the family, was recurrently conscious to the end. She had little to say to the members of her family who had been keeping an all-night vigil.

Funeral services will be conducted at Washington, C. H., probably from the Daugherty home, it was understood, according to H. E. Daugherty, grandson of the deceased, and son of Mal S. Daugherty.

The former banker was called from the courtroom, where he is standing trial for alleged irregularities in connection with the operation of the Ohio State Bank, to the bedside of his mother late yesterday afternoon.

He had been of the witness stand in his own defense, giving a recital of his lifelong career from a jaunt to the presidency of the bank and explaining his handling of the bank's affairs before its failure last May 2, 1930.

ON PROBATION

Royce Fields, Portsmouth, indicted by the grand jury for implication in the robberies at two chain stores, one here and one in Williamsport, is now on probation from the court of common pleas in Scioto-co, for failure to provide for a minor child, according to word received Tuesday by Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff.

EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT HELD VALID BY COURT

PROHIBITION IN SENATE AGAIN

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—The prohibition question was to get attention in the state legislature again today in a senate hearing on the Marshall resolution memorializing Congress to call a constitutional convention for the purpose of considering amendments.

Capt. William H. Stayton, Washington, D. C., head of the League Against Prohibition, was to appear as one of the speakers. Consent to use of the senate chamber to care for the big crowd expected has been granted.

MRS. HEDGES, AGED 86, DIES

Prominent Walnut-Twp Resident Passes Away at Home Near Ashville.

Mrs. Mary Jane Hedges, aged 86, widow of Josiah Hedges, and one of Walnut-twp's oldest residents, passed away at her home east of Ashville Monday. Her heart trouble was the cause of death.

Mrs. Hedges, well known in this city, was born May 24, 1844, in South Bloomfield, the daughter of Denonce and Levisa Arnt O'Hara.

Surviving are one son, B. O. Hedges, residing at the home and one brother, Frank O'Hara of Lockbourne.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 1:30 p. m. at the residence with Rev. Mantle of the Ashville M. E. church officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery by E. F. Schlegel.

SPANGLER BILL BEING STUDIED

Tarleton Man Would Restrict Use of Firearms; Measure Handled Skeptically.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—Afrat that bootlegging activities may be broadened to include the illegal sale of revolvers, if his proposal is enacted into law, the state Senate commerce and industry committee today was skeptically considering the Spangler bill to restrict the possession of firearms.

One provision in the proposal of Senator William I. Spangler (D), of Tarleton, requires the registration of all pistols, at a cost of $1, to the county clerk of courts.

The eventual result would be, Senator Nils P. Johnson (R), of Youngstown, committee chairman, was afraid, the inspection of private homes for firearms just as homes may now be searched for liquor.

"We don't want any more bootlegging," Senator Johnson declared. Senator Robert A. Taft (R), of Cincinnati, was in agreement.

Further action on the bill was deferred until next Monday night.

AIRMEN HELD BY PERU BAND

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 24.—Two American commercial pilots and their mail plane detained by rebels at Arequipa, Peru, were reported here today to be safe and unharmed.

The fliers, it was stated, are receiving courteous treatment from the insurgents. They are William Grey of Dutchess-co, N. Y., and Byron Richards of the far west.

BUCKLEY CASE TRIAL BEGINS

DETROIT, Feb. 24.—With a panel of 125 prospective jurors drawn, the long-awaited murder trial of the purported gangster who shot down Gerald Buckley was scheduled to start today. It will drag out six or eight weeks.

Seven months and one day after they are said by police to have slain the militant radio announcer in the lobby of the Lassalle hotel here, Ted Pizzino, debonair New York gunman, Angelo Livecchi, former St. Louis hoodlum and Joe Bonmarito, Detroit underworld character, will answer to first degree murder indictments.

Miss Marie Robertson, superintendent of Berger hospital, returned Monday after spending the week-end at Marion, Ind., with friends.

WANT APOLOGY FOR STATEMENT

DANVILLE, Feb. 24.—Eleven of the leading citizens of Franklin-co today sent a telegram to Fred C. Dezenford, an attorney for the prohibition bureau in Washington, asking that he apologize for a statement he is alleged to have made to the effect that 99 out of 100 persons in the county had some connection with the making of illicit liquor.

Among the signers of the telegram were, Mayor N. E. Hutchinson of Rocky Mount, Judge Peter Dillard of the Franklin-co court and R. A. Prillman, a banker.

WOMAN SHOT BY STRIKERS

Dies of Wounds, Another Girl Wounded and Man Hurt Is Being Held.

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Feb. 24.—A young woman was shot and killed, another girl was wounded seriously and a man was wounded and arrested as a material witness early today when rioting broke out among striking employees of the Mammoth hosiery mill here.

Alberta Bachman, 20, died from a bullet wound, her sister, Elsie, 25, is in Rosenkrans hospital suffering from gunshot wounds and Russell Hastie, 25, shot in the hip, was placed in the custody of Sheriff Clarence M. Werkheiser as a material witness.

The dead and injured strikers all lived in Stroudsburg or nearby. The strike was called about three weeks ago by the local union of the American Federation of Full-finished Hosiery Workers in an effort to secure uniform-hours and increases in pay. A similar strike now is in progress in the Philadelphia district where about 3,500 workers are out and 35 mills are affected. Disturbances have been reported in both districts.

CHI ELECTION IS ON TODAY

Interest of World Centered On Windy City; Candidates Confident.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—Chicago held the interest of the world today as more than a half million voters expressed their choice for the man who is to govern the mid-west metropolis for the next four years, including 1933, the year of the International exposition.

Only minor irregularities were reported to the election board, which had an army of 70,000 judges and clerks to watch for fraud as the balloting began and the special police details assigned to wards notorious for election-day rioting had no occasion to assert their authority.

Despite a brilliant sun and mild temperatures, the early voting was not heavy. Some officials predicted a record primary vote, however, with estimates running as high as 800,000.

YOUTHFUL WIFE FACES MURDER

MARIETTA, O., Feb. 24.—First degree murder charges against Mrs. Freda Daugherty, 15-year-old wife who police say has confessed shooting an attractive divorcee who she believed had disrupted her home, and perjury charges against her husband for alleged irregular procedure in obtaining a marriage license, will be filed today in the slaying of Mrs. Geraldine Harriman, Harrietsville, according to authorities.

Claim by the girl-wife that Ray Daugherty, her husband, substituted his sister, Mrs. Margaret Treadway of Parkersburg, W. Va., for her at a marriage license bureau in Zanesville because she was too youthful in appearance, caused Prosecutor Everett F. Folger last night to demand filing of perjury charges against the husband in Muskingum-co courts.

SOVIET BILL UP

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The fate of the Kendall bill banning importation of commodities produced by convict or forced labor, aiming particularly at Soviet Russia, rested with the senate finance committee today, with changes against it.

BIRTHS

Dr. and Mrs. D. J. Bradley of Cincinnati, announced the birth of a daughter. Mrs. Bradley was formerly Irma Jeffries of this city.

ASHVILLE MEN MEET COUNTY SOLONS TODAY

Group of 22 Property-owners Request Improvement of Cromley Road TO FILE PETITION

Better Bus Service is Important Question Now

Twenty-two residents of Ashville and immediate vicinity appeared before the board of county commissioners Tuesday to request improvement of the Cromley road in Walnut and Harrison-twps from the Scioto Trail to the village proper. Spokesman for the citizens was Everett W. Seeds, banker, who expressed the group's desire for improvement, stating that this highway is a short cut to this city.

Seeds said that it is a fact that the road needs to be repaired and that after careful consideration the men decided to take up the matter with the commissioners. The highway is exceedingly rough and at times almost impassable and persons living along the road are a part of the year not able to get in and out. William Cromley, Harrison-twp, a member of the delegation, stated that until the road was used for a detour between this city and Columbus during the recent paving the Cromley road was in good condition but since that time it has been getting worse.

MRS. WARREN, KINGSTON, DIES

Native of This County Succumbs to Complications at Home Monday Eve.

Mrs. Clara Black Warren, aged 75, died at her home in Kingston Monday at 8:30 p. m. of complications after a serious illness of one week. She was a native of Pickaway-co and was born on March 14, 1855 the daughter of Joseph and Margaret Ann Hoffman Black.

On April 16, 1931, Mrs. Warren and her husband, John Warren, who survives her would have observed their 57th wedding anniversary.

Surviving besides the husband is one daughter, Mrs. Anna Lorena Bookwalter of Kingston. One daughter died at the age of eight years.

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the home with Rev. J. R. Fields of Logan officiating. Burial will be in the Whisler cemetery.

MONROE-TWP MAN CLAIMED

Ambrose Winfough, Aged 85, Succumbs at His Home in Five Points Monday.

Ambrose L. Winfough, aged 85, well-known Monroe-twp resident, succumbed Monday at his home in Five Points. Four sons, Scott, Charles, Nelson and Ott Winfough, survive him.

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the home with burial in the Darbyville cemetery.

IRON TON BROKER TO FACE CHARGE

IRON TON, Ohio, Feb. 24.—Jail commitment of William F. Thipps, 35, former Iron ton broker, for failure to give bond after pleading not guilty to an indictment charging him with embezzlement was recalled today as a result of the illness of the accused man.

Thipps, one of the city's most prominent residents, and business men, is alleged to have converted to his own certain stocks belonging to a client.

BRIDGE FURDER

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 24.—Selection of a jury to which the fate of Mrs. Myrtle Bennett, accused of slaying her husband, John G. Bennett, following a bridge game argument, was to be resumed in circuit court here today.

Big News! Two Merchants Fined

Two well-known local business men were fined and assessed costs when they were found guilty of petit larceny in a newly-improvised court Monday evening. The men were Budd Harden, local Chevrolet dealer, and Clarence Helvering, filling station proprietor. They were arrested two weeks ago after allegedly taking a board from the lumber yard of Alfred Lee, E. Main-st.

But it's all a joke. The men were tried before a court at the Kiwanis Club Monday evening with E. L. Crist and Tom A. Renick prosecuting the case, Mayor B. T. Hedges acting as judge, and Sterling Lamb acting as defense attorney. The convicted pair tried to establish an alibi by claiming that on the night in question they were at the home of Rev. Bill Alexander in South Bloomfield playing poker. Since Alexander is known as a quite reputable citizen, the alibi did not hold.

Harden and Helvering were each fined 70 cents to be paid into the club treasury and were ordered by Mayor Hedges to wear a plug hat for five minutes at the next Kiwanis meeting next Monday. Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff, an alleged accomplice of the convicted pair, will be charged with contempt of court at a later date for he failed to appear Monday night after being subpoenaed.

4-YEAR TERMS TO BE FOUGHT IN OHIO HOUSE

Republicans Contend that Proposed Plan would Favor Democrats

PASSES SENATORS

Move would Go Into Statutes November, 1934

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—Contending that the measure is over-friendly to Democrats, Republican members of the state house of representatives today were expected to oppose the Taft four-year tenure plan for elective state officers which the senate passed last night with only a single dissenting vote.

Senator John A. Lloyd (R) of Portsmouth, voted alone against the resolution with objection, according to other Republicans, that the provision for off-presidential-year elections of Governor, auditor, secretary of state, treasurer, lieutenant governor and attorney general is too likely to bring future Democratic victories.

Still maintaining that any such advantage is an imaginary one, Senator Robert A. Taft (R) of Cincinnati, author of the plan, admitted today, however, that the opinion of Lloyd is likely to be expressed with greater emphasis in the house, bringing possible future difficulty to the plan.

CHANGE ELECTIONS
Taft also said that the presence of Senators Roy C. Gillen (R) of Wellston, and Walter G. Nickels (R) of New Philadelphia, last night would have meant two more negative votes. Gillen and Nickels were both excused from last night's session.

As drawn up by Senator Taft, the proposal calls for a referendum on a constitutional amendment providing for four-year terms beginning with the November elections in 1934. State and national elections as a result, would never be held the same year.

Defending this section of the resolution, Taft declared: "I purpose to incorporate the off-year clause in the belief that state issues can more intelligently be handled when not intermingled with national issues, and that state candidates should not be permitted to ride in."

YOUTH'S TRIAL IS UNDERWAY

Select Jurors For Murder Trial of First of Five Boys in Girl's Death.

VALPARAISO, Ind., Feb. 24.—Final selection of the jurors who are to try Virgil Kirkland, 20, charged with the murder of 18-year-old Arlene Draves, was expected today as defense counsel questioned a tentative panel of 12 farmers.

Kirkland, a former high school athlete of Gary, Ind., was indicted with four other youths for the murder of the Draves girl who died at a house party last Nov. 30. It was charged that all five youths, while under the influence of liquor, attacked the girl.

The prospective jurors all middle aged men, were questioned closely yesterday as to whether they would allow prejudice against violators of the prohibition law influence them in trying a defendant on a murder charge.

Each agreed that he was not prejudiced against violation of the prohibition law.

STRIKES GAS

James W. Edgerton, this morning while drilling for water on the farm of Orlando Smith in Marion-twp, struck three big gas wells. They are reported to be the biggest ever struck in this county.

MOVE SEWAGE PLANT SOUTH

Columbus Council Votes To Buy Land 3 1/2 Miles South of City.

Columbus city council has acquired 254 acres of land south of that city on the Jackson-pk and Monday night voted to erect a new sewage disposal plant there by a vote of four to three. The lands belonged to David Davies, 11 acres; Laura Thraill 114 acres and the estate of M. E. Thraill 140 acres.

The site is three and one-half miles south of the present site of the disposal plant and is moved to the new location above the strong protests of residents of the northern section of Pickaway-co. An ordinance calling for the expenditure of $100,000 for purchase of the site will be introduced next Monday night.

According to Columbus councilmen no farms are being broken up to obtain the land. All are separate parcels, they state.

COUNTY JAIL IS BEING PAINTED

Pickaway-co's jail is undergoing a complete overhauling and is not costing the county a cent other than the paint. Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff has every prisoner in the bastille wielding a paint brush and when they finish their task the old county jail will look like John D.'s mansion. Using a light-colored paint the jail, especially the top floor which is being treated first, looks quite different than usual.

Prisoners who have had nothing to do but sit around and look wise have been clamoring for some work and now they have it. Clarence Scott, colored, of Chillicothe, in jail for non-support, is called the interior decorator by the rest of the prisoners, and he is given the task of touching up the difficult spots.

MAYOR DIES

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 24.—Funeral services were to be announced today for Louis P. Fuhrmann, for eight years Democratic mayor of Buffalo. He died here last night at the age of 62 after a two years' illness.

Rainfall Cheats Pickaway Co.

Rainfall in Pickaway-co during 1930 was 14 and one-half inches less than it was supposed to be according to a government survey, Dr. H. R. Clarke, local weather observer says. The county was entitled to 39 inches of rainfall, Dr. Clarke states, and it received only 24 and one-half inches. February in 1930, reports Dr. Clarke, was the warmest February in 100 years.

The hottest day in Circleville in 1930 was on July 20 when the thermometer hit 109 degrees.

CHICAGO COPS HUNT CAPONE

Vagrancy Warrant Out For Arrest of Gang Leader; All Haunts Are Searched.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—The search for "Scarface Al" Capone, wanted on a pious enemy vagrancy warrant, continued today but special detective squads leading the hunt reported they could find no trace of the gang leader.

At the request of Judge Frank M. Padden, special squads under chief investigator Patrick Roche searched all known Capone haunts in Chicago and the suburbs of Cicero last night and today with no result.

"Many candidates for mayor have complained that Capone is in the city to aid their opponents," Judge Padden told Roche.

The judge said he would call a special session of court should the gang leader be apprehended before he is scheduled to appear in federal court tomorrow morning on a contempt citation.

Federal authorities announced that seven witnesses will appear against the gang leader tomorrow. They will testify, it was said, that Capone was in good health in Miami in 1928 at the time he claimed he was too ill to come before the federal grand jury here.

In the meantime several other district courts issued rulings directly contrary to the position taken by Judge Clark.

Constitutionality of the Eighteenth amendment was first upheld by the high court in 1920 in that case the court filed "no decision" but did not give the usual lengthy opinion. There were two dissents.

MANY ATTEND MANTLE RITES

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna B. Mantle, who passed away at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Cook, E. Main-st, last Thursday, were held Sunday at the Cook home with Dr. Franklin McElfresh officiating. Burial was in Mt. Sterling.

Those from out of the city who attended the funeral rites were Mr. and Mrs. William Wirsching, Mary Wirsching and Kramer Wirsching of Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. Warren T. Mantle of Cleveland; Harry Mantle of Louisville, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. William T. Mantle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vogel, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mantle, Edward Mantle, Miss Annette Mantle, Mrs. Viola Mantle and Bruce Mantle of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Livingston of London; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mantle, Frank Mantle, Miss Ella Mantle, Mrs. Jennie Stump, Miss Lucille Mantle and Miss Margaret Mantle of Derby.

Miss Della Spangler of Harrietsville and the following members of the Old Guard Women's Relief Corps of Dayton of which she was a member, Mrs. Herman, Mrs. Selzer, Mrs. Sartman, Mrs. Suter, Mrs. Weaver, Mrs. Bucher, Mrs. May and Mrs. Boesman.

MOTHER OF MAL DAUGHERTY IS DEAD

94-YEAR-OLD WOMAN TAKEN BY PNEUMONIA

Death of Aged Lady Follows Relapse on Monday in Washington C. H.

TRIAL IS DELAYED

Both Harry and Mal Present at Time of Death

WASHINGTON, C. H., O., Feb. 24.—Mrs. Jane Daugherty, 94-year-old mother of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States, and of Mal S. Daugherty, who is on trial in common pleas court here in connection with the closing of the Ohio State Bank, died here today from pneumonia.

OUTSIDE LOOP RECORD BROKEN

GLENDAL, Cal., Feb. 24.—Tex Rankin, Portland, Ore., aviator, today held a new world's record for outside loops, having completed 78 consecutive outside loops in 88 minutes yesterday above the Grand Central air terminal here.

The former record, held by Paul Mantz, was 46 loops in three hours. Rankin said he would have continued but for the fact that a pair of darkened glasses he was wearing made him think it was getting too dark to carry out any additional loops.

Dr. and Mrs. D. J. Bradley of Cincinnati, announced the birth of a daughter. Mrs. Bradley was formerly Irma Jeffries of this city.

ASHVILLE MEN MEET COUNTY SOLONS TODAY

Group of 22 Property-owners Request Improvement of Cromley Road

TO FILE PETITION

Better Bus Service is Important Question Now

Twenty-two residents of Ashville and immediate vicinity appeared before the board of county commissioners Tuesday to request improvement of the Cromley road in Walnut and Harrison-twps from the Scioto Trail to the village proper.

Spokesman for the citizens was Everett W. Seeds, banker, who expressed the group's desire for improvement, stating that this highway is a short cut to this city. Seeds said that it is a fact that the road needs to be repaired and that after careful consideration the men decided to take up the matter with the commissioners.

The highway is exceedingly rough and at times almost impassable and persons living along the road are a part of the year not able to get in and out. William Cromley, Harrison-twp, a member of the delegation, stated that until the road was used for a detour between this city and Columbus during the recent paving the Cromley road was in good condition but since that time it has been getting worse.

MRS. WARREN, KINGSTON, DIES

Native of This County Succumbs to Complications at Home Monday Eve.

Mrs. Clara Black Warren, aged 75, died at her home in Kingston Monday at 8:30 p. m. of complications after a serious illness of one week. She was a native of Pickaway-co and was born on March 14, 1855 the daughter of Joseph and Margaret Ann Hoffman Black.

On April 16, 1931, Mrs. Warren and her husband, John Warren, who survives her would have observed their 57th wedding anniversary.

Surviving besides the husband is one daughter, Mrs. Anna Lorena Bookwalter of Kingston. One daughter died at the age of eight years.

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the home with Rev. J. R. Fields of Logan officiating. Burial will be in the Whisler cemetery.

MONROE-TWP MAN CLAIMED

Ambrose Winfough, Aged 85, Succumbs at His Home in Five Points Monday.

Ambrose L. Winfough, aged 85, well-known Monroe-twp resident, succumbed Monday at his home in Five Points. Four sons, Scott, Charles, Nelson and Ott Winfough, survive him.

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the home with burial in the Darbyville cemetery.

IRONTON BROKER TO FACE CHARGE

IRONTON, Ohio, Feb. 24.—Jail commitment of William F. Thippis 55, former Ironton broker, for failure to give bond after pleading not guilty to an indictment charging him with embezzlement was formalized today as a result of the illness of the accused man.

Thippis, one of the city's most prominent residents, and business men, is alleged to have converted to his own certain stocks belonging to a client.

BRIDGE MURDER

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 24.—Selection of a jury to which the fate of Mrs. Myrtle Bennett, accused of slaying her husband, John G. Bennett, following a bridge game argument, was to be resumed in circuit court here today.

Big News! Two Merchants Fined

Two well-known local business men were fined and assessed costs when they were found guilty of petit larceny in a newly-improvised court Monday evening. The men were Budd Harden, local Chevrolet dealer, and Clarence Helvering, filling station proprietor. They were arrested two weeks ago after allegedly taking a board from the lumber yard of Alfred Lee, E. Main-st.

But it's all a joke. The men were tried before a court at the Kiwanis Club Monday evening with E. L. Crist and Tom A. Renick prosecuting the case, Mayor B. T. Hedges acting as judge, and Sterling Lamb acting as defense attorney. The convicted pair tried to establish an alibi by claiming that on the night in question they were at the home of Rev. Bill Alexander in South Bloomfield playing poker. Since Alexander is known as a quite reputable citizen, the alibi did not hold.

Harden and Helvering were each fined 70 cents to be paid into the club treasury and were ordered by Mayor Hedges to wear a plug hat for five minutes at the next Kiwanis meeting next Monday. Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff, an alleged accomplice of the convicted pair, will be charged with contempt of court at a later date for he failed to appear Monday night after being subpoenaed.

4-YEAR TERMS TO BE FOUGHT IN OHIO HOUSE

Republicans Contend that Proposed Plan would Favor Democrats

PASSES SENATORS

Move would Go Into Statutes November, 1934

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—Contending that the measure is overfriendly to Democrats, Republican members of the state house of representatives today were expected to oppose the Taft four-year tenure plan for elective state officers which the senate passed last night with only a single dissenting vote.

Senator John A. Lloyd (R) of Portsmouth, voted alone against the resolution with objection, according to other Republicans, that the provision for off-presidential-year elections of Governor, auditor, secretary of state, treasurer, lieutenant governor and attorney general is too likely to bring future Democratic victories.

Still maintaining that any such advantage is an imaginary one, Senator Robert A. Taft (R) of Cincinnati, author of the plan, admitted today, however, that the opinion of Lloyd is likely to be expressed with greater emphasis in the house, bringing possible future difficulty to the plan.

CHARGE ELECTIONS

Taft also said that the presence of Senators Roy J. Gillen (R) of Wellston, and Walter G. Nickels (R) of New Philadelphia, last night would have meant two more negative votes. Gillen and Nickels were both excused from last night's session.

As drawn up by Senator Taft, the proposal calls for a referendum on a constitutional amendment providing for four-year terms beginning with the November elections in 1934. State and national elections as a result, would never be held the same year.

Defending this section of the resolution, Taft declared: "I purpose to incorporate the off-year clause in the belief that state issues can more intelligently be handled when not intermingled with national issues, and that state candidates should not be permitted to ride in."

YOUTH'S TRIAL IS UNDERWAY

Select Jurors For Murder Trial of First of Five Boys In Girl's Death.

VALPARAISO, Ind., Feb. 24.—Final selection of the jurors who are to try Virgil Kirkland, 20, charged with the murder of 18-year-old Arlene Draves, was expected today as defense counsel questioned a tentative panel of 12 farmers.

Kirkland, a former high school athlete of Gary, Ind., was indicted with four other youths for the murder of the Draves girl who died at a house party last Nov. 30. It was charged that all five youths, while under the influence of liquor, attacked the girl.

The prospective jurors, all middle aged men, were questioned closely yesterday as to whether they would allow prejudice against violators of the prohibition law influence them in trying a defendant on a murder charge.

Each agreed that he was "not prejudiced against violation of the prohibition law."

James W. Edgington, this city, while drilling for water on the farm of Orlando Smith in Madison-twp, struck three big gas wells. They are reported to be the biggest ever struck in this county.

Rainfall Cheats Pickaway Co.

Rainfall in Pickaway-co during 1930 was 14 and one-half inches less than it was supposed to be according to a government survey, Dr. H. R. Clarke, local weather observer says. The county was entitled to 39 inches of rainfall, Dr. Clarke states, and it received only 24 and one-half inches. February in 1930, reports Dr. Clarke, was the warmest February in 100 years.

The hottest day in Circleville in 1930 was on July 20 when the thermometer hit 109 degrees.

CHICAGO COPS HUNT CAPONE

Vagrancy Warrant Out For Arrest of Gang Leader; All Haunts Are Searched.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—The search for "Scarface Al" Capone, wanted on a public enemy vagrancy warrant, continued today but special detective squads leading the hunt reported they could find no trace of the gang leader.

At the request of Judge Frank M. Padden special squads under chief investigator Patrick Roche searched all known Capone haunts in Chicago and the suburbs of Cicero last night and today with no result.

Many candidates for mayor have complained that Capone is in the city to aid their opponents, Judge Padden told Roche.

The judge said he would call a special session of court should the gang leader be apprehended before he is scheduled to appear in federal court tomorrow morning on a contempt citation.

Federal authorities announced that seven witnesses will appear against the gang leader tomorrow. They will testify, it was said, that Capone was in good health in Miami in 1928 at the time he claimed he was too ill to come before the federal grand jury here.

MOVE SEWAGE PLANT SOUTH

Columbus Council Votes To Buy Land 3 1/2 Miles South of City.

Columbus city council has acquired 254 acres of land south of that city on the Jackson-pk and Monday night voted to erect a new sewage disposal plant there by a vote of four to three. The lands belonged to David Davies, 11 acres; Laura Thraillkill 114 acres and the estate of M. E. Thraillkill 40 acres.

The site is three and one-half miles south of the present site of the disposal plant and is moved to the new location above the strong protests of residents of the northern section of Pickaway-co. An ordinance calling for the expenditure of $100,000 for purchase of the site will be introduced next Monday night.

According to Columbus councilmen no farms are being broken up to obtain the land. All are separate parcels, they state.

COUNTY JAIL IS BEING PAINTED

Pickaway-co's jail is undergoing a complete overhauling and is not costing the county a cent other than the paint. Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff has every prisoner in the stable wielding a paint brush and when they finish their task the old county jail will look like John D.'s mansion. Using a light-colored paint, the jail, especially the top floor which is being treated first, looks quite different than usual.

Prisoners who have had nothing to do but sit around and look wise have been clamoring for some work and now they have it. Clarence Scott, colored, of Chillicothe, in jail for non-support, is called the interior decorator by the rest of the prisoners, and he is given the task of touching up the difficult spots.

MAYOR DIES

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 24.—Funeral services were to be announced today for Louis P. Fuhrmann, for eight years Democratic mayor of Buffalo. He died here last night at the age of 62 after a two years' illness.

JUDGE CLARK REVERSED ON HIS DECISION

Newark, N. J., Man Ruled Prohibition Amendment Not Properly Ratified

IS SECOND DECISION Ruling of Supreme Court Awaited by Nation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The United States supreme court today held the eighteenth amendment to be valid thereby reversing the decision of Federal Judge William T. Clark, of Newark, N. J., that the prohibition amendment was improperly ratified.

Thus the supreme court ruled for the second time that prohibition was lawfully made a part of the constitution. The question before the court was whether the eighteenth amendment was properly ratified by the legislature of three-fourths of the states or whether it should have been ratified by state constitutional conventions to which delegates were elected by the people.

The country was startled when Judge Clark handed down a decision in Newark on Dec. 18, 1930, to the effect that the amendment involving a grant of power over the people to the federal government should have been ratified by the people through conventions and that because this was not done the amendment was invalid.

QUASHED INDICTMENT

The decision was given in quashing the indictment against William H. Sprague and William J. Howey, New Jersey farmers, for transporting beer.

Aroused by the decision U. S. Solicitor General Thacher immediately prepared an appeal direct to the high court on Jan. 5. He moved in open court to advance the case and the court breaking a speed record next day set it for argument on Jan. 21. The court ignored pleas of counsel for the other side to set argument after April 15.

In the meantime several other district courts issued rulings directly contrary to the position taken by Judge Clark.

Constitutionality of the Eighteenth amendment was first upheld by the high court in 1920 in that case the court filed "conclusion" but did not give the usual lengthy opinion. There were two dissents.

CASE DISMISSED

The precise question of whether the amendment should have been ratified by convention was not raised but the government contended that it had been discussed by attorneys in the case and virtually the same question was decided in the case of Hawke vs. Smith.

MANY ATTEND MANTLE RITES

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna B. Mantle, who passed away at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Cook, E. Main-st, last Thursday, were held Sunday at the Cook home with Dr. Franklin McKelresh officiating. Burial was in Mt. Sterling.

Those from out of the city who attended the funeral rites were Mr. and Mrs. William Wirsching, Mary Wirsching and Kramer Wirsching of Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. Warren T. Mantle of Cleveland; Harry Mantle of Louisville, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. William T. Mantle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vogel, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mantle, Edward Mantle, Miss Annette Mantle, Mrs. Viola Mantle and Bruce Mantle of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Livingston of London; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mantle, Frank Mantle, Miss Ella Mantle, Mrs. Jennie Stump, Miss Lucile Mantle and Mrs. Margaret Mantle of Derby; Miss Della Spangler of Harrisburg; Miss Ethel Hane of Ashville and the following members of the Old Guard Women's Relief Corps of Dayton of which she was a member, Mrs. Hermon, Mrs. Zeller, Mrs. Sartman, Mrs. Siler, Mrs. Wasser, Mrs. Bucher, Mrs. May and Mrs. Boesman.

FARMERS MUST HELP SELVES BY REDUCING THEIR CROPS

That the world market for American wheat is "hopeless," and that the farmer's only salvation is a sharp curbing of production, are the blunt and uncompromising conclusions of Alexander Legge, chairman of the Farm Board, after more than a year's intensive study of President Hoover's farm problems. He presents his informal report direct to the farmers of the country this week in the columns of The Country Home, an agricultural monthly which circulates largely in the so-called "farm belt."

"The government has backed the Farm Board with a fund of half a billion dollars," Mr. Legge says, "and the question now is, what has the Farm Board done with that money and what does it hope to do for the farmer?"

"We started out 18 months ago. There were those who assured us there was no such thing as over-production, and others who insisted it was not the farmer's surplus but his too costly methods of production which caused his troubles. "No over-production? Well, for 12 months without interruption the visible supply of wheat in this country has been greater than it was in the same month of the preceding year. In July, 1926, the surplus was around 100 million bushels. That was too much. But since then it has grown steadily until in July, 1930, it was 274 million bushels!"

"The world market for American wheat is pretty hopeless. Talk about present wheat prices being low—why, American farmers, to sell their wheat abroad now would have to accept 20 cents less than they are getting at home. The only thing that is keeping foreign wheat from coming into this country now is our tariff of 42 cents."

"I think it has been shown that the intelligent farmer with a one-family farm of say, 400 acres of land worked with modern equipment can raise wheat cheaply enough so that, as the racehorse people say, he 'will be in the money.' Of course, our farmers must lower their costs of production on wheat and corn like the men with the steel factories and the automobile factories. But they must also adjust their production to the potential demand. The farmer has never done that. He has listened to the orator who told him what a human benefactor he was when he 'made two blades grow where one grew before.'"

"It seems to be hard for the farmer to realize that he can make more by raising less. Of course, if the price is the same he will make more money when he raises 1,000 bushels than when he raises 800 bushels. But if he raises 1,000 bushels instead of 800 when 800 is all he can sell the price won't be the same.

"Look at the potato crop. The market can normally consume 400,000,000 bushels. If the farmers raise 10 per cent less than that, they get a high price and make money. If they raise 10 per cent more they have to accept a ruinous price.

"Right now we have an illustration of the livestock industry. Hog production in recent years has been pretty well balanced with demand, and prices have resisted the decline. There has been over-production of sheep and prices have collapsed.

"In 1923 the South produced 10,200,000 bales of cotton and sold it for $1,600,000,000. That looked good for the cotton planter. If he made that much on 10,000,000 bales, what could he do with 12, 15, 18,000,000 bales? So he kept increasing his crop until in 1926 he raised 18,000,000 bales. And for that he got a billion dollars—$600,000,000 less than for a crop 75 per cent smaller.

"Various plans have been offered to handle the export of the so-called exportable surplus of wheat. Well, my suggestion is to abolish it. What's the use of raising an exportable surplus when there is no place to export it profitably? The farmers must bring about a condition where American farmers will no longer raise wheat for export."

"How are we going to do that? Well, there is only one way—by organization. And this brings us to the major effort of the Farm Board.

"I suppose a lot of people will throw up their hands and say, 'For the Lord's sake! You don't plan to start some more farmers' organizations. Haven't the farmers got enough organization already?' "Yes, plenty. If all the farm organization secretaries were to come to Washington in a body and form into a procession and pass four abreast in review before the Capitol the parade would be hours passing. When we took over one of the bureaus of the Agricultural Department we found a record of farm co-operatives alone that numbered 12,000. These organizations have served a useful purpose but haven't carried their operations far enough.

"What must be done now is to encourage the farmers to join their local co-operatives and to encourage the local co-operatives to become affiliated with the national association. When a majority of the wheat growers belong to the farmers' marketing problem will be well on the way to a solution. "Will the farmers join? That is the question and on its answer hinges the success of the whole plan. Well now, why don't they join? Other farmers have done it in other crops than wheat. Take the walnut growers. They control 90 per cent of their crop. And they sold their crop last year, in spite of all depression, at the best price in its history. And this year's crop opened at a cent and a half higher than last year's."

All Outdoors

(Written exclusively for International News Service by James W. Stuber, secretary of the Outdoor Writers Association of America.)

COLUMBUS, O.—Sportsmen of Ohio are about the only class of people who come to the legislature asking that their taxes be increased—that more tax be placed upon themselves, it was stated at the statehouse in Columbus when the universal anglers' license bill was introduced by Senator Roy Gillen of Wellston, Feb. 17.

The sportsmen are asking the legislature to do away with the anglers' license which now requires those who fish with rod and reel to buy a $1.00 license and pay the cost of upkeep of hatcheries and work of re-stocking, and in its place enact a license at $1.00 per year for all fishermen over the age of 18, exempting land-owners on their own lands.

The bill is advocated by the fishermen themselves. The league of Ohio Sportsmen, the Izaak Walton league and the Conservation Committee of the American Legion are solidly behind the universal anglers' license bill, it is stated by Former Senator Atwood, who drafted the measure.

It is estimated that the proposed bill will bring to the Division of Conservation between $300,000 and $400,000 per year to be used for rearing ponds, construction of lakes and dams, fish hatchery operation and re-stocking with game fish on a large scale.

Non-residents, under the provisions of the bill, will be required to pay $2.25 per year. At present all fishermen who fish with a cane pole including non-residents, are exempt. The cane-pole fishermen catch many times the number of fish that the rod and reel fishermen catch, according to the sportsmen's groups and the Legion men who are supporting the bill.

The rod and reel fishermen represent only one-eighth of the fishermen in Ohio. The rest of them are taking fish from Ohio waters and contributing nothing to upkeep or re-stocking, it is pointed out. Even the hunters' license money has been used through necessity, for the benefit of the large army of fishermen who have not been required to buy a license, it is said.

"If it's all take and no put, there will soon be no fishing in Ohio," Izaak Walton leaders declare. The whole plan is one of restoration and replacement. It is not a tax-for fishing, it is a replacement fee."

to office solely on the crest of a national wave." Those Republicans who object believe the nation's tendency in recent years to elect Republican presidents might well remain an aid to the Ohio G. O. P. in its campaign for state offices. To this protest Taft repeatedly reiterated that little real difference will be noticed.

Democrats declared, however, that they would have voted against the measure if it had not contained the off-presidential years clause.

BETTER RESULTS

Throughout his campaign for the bill, Senator Taft has argued that better state government will result if such a law is enacted. He has persistently declared that "the state is disgusted with so many elections." The 23 to 1 vote of adoption last night was, accordingly, a genuine triumph for his policy.

"Fly-by-night undertakers, crafty salesmen who take advantage of relatives of persons who die suddenly and unexpectedly," will be the losers, Senator James E. Finck of Canal Winchester, declared, as a result of the senate passage of his bill requiring a licensing of funeral directors.

It does not assure a lower funeral price, the author said, but it provides a state board of embalmers and funeral directors which must license funeral directors as well as embalmers. This board will be careful to "clean up the profession and keep it ethical," Finck said. The vote was 24-0, Senator William H. Hermer (R) of Monroeville being one of the speakers.

The Weber bill allowing common pleas court judges to perform marriages was adopted 26 to 0 and sent to the house a few minutes before adjournment last night.

Business Round Up Made

(Copyright, 1931, By International News Service.)

A nationwide survey conducted by International News Service today showed that business generally throughout the country is decidedly on the upgrade.

From the New England states to the Pacific coast the reports that were gathered by telegraph showed a steady increase in employment, greater activity in almost all manufacturing lines and evidence of greater buying power everywhere.

The reports showed also that within the next few weeks many large construction projects, for which the money already has been appropriated, will get under way. The reports gathered by representatives of the International News Service follow:

NEW YORK CITY—National automobile chamber of commerce reports January production 183,876 autos and trucks shows an increase of 14 per cent over December. From 110,000 to 125,000 men replaced on payrolls of industry since Jan. 1.

Statisticians of F. W. Dodge corporation report that residence building contracts for 37 states east of Rockies during the first fifteen days of February total $42,153,400. If second half continues at that same rate will show an increase over last February of $10,600,000 and will be the first increase in a year.

Garment industry reports substantial increase in January over January a year ago.

CHICAGO—Accelerated production schedules in the key industries such as steel mills, clothing manufacturers, radio plants, automobile accessory factories and railroad shops have returned approximately ten thousand men to work here," said Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the association of commerce. "Indicative of the present trend of Chicago's industrial plants is the fact that of seven hundred and seventy-four typical factories only twenty-three are operating at levels considerably below their 1929 schedules."

"Low inventories in the hands of processors and distributors and reduced prices are making for some increased turnover and the business

MARGARINE BILL BEFORE SENATE

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—The case of "the Ohio cow versus the palm tree of the South Sea Islands" today passes into the hands of the Ohio Senate.

This unique appellation has been applied by Rep. D. W. Galehouse (R) of Marshfield, Wayne-co, to his bill, which passed the House Monday night, providing for stricter regulations regarding the amount of oleomargarine sold in Ohio and increasing the penalties for violators of these regulations.

INSURANCE MEN AT WILMINGTON

WILMINGTON, O., Feb. 24.—Approximately 60 agents from 15 southwestern Ohio counties are to gather here Wednesday to take part in a district meeting of the Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance Company, according to officials of the Clinton-co Farm Bureau. The sessions will be held in the New Marten hotel.

M. E. Foltz, superintendent of claims of the company; H. W. Smoots, sales manager, and L. J. Bennett, assistant sales manager, all of Columbus, will be the speakers.

The speakers and the agents will discuss new premium rates, 1931 sales plans and methods, the relation of agents to claims work, and the program and plans for the 1931 annual meeting of the company, to be held in Columbus, March 12 and 13.

The counties which will be represented are: Adams, Brown, Clinton, Highland, Pike, Scioto, Ross, Butler, Fayette, Greene, Hamilton, Warren, Pickaway, and Fairfield.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses, as they all set where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom larger than a dime (no matter the size of the rupture), and all cases can be retained with the aid of a bed rest.

The Spermatic Shield-Complex, in combination with the Retainer-Simplex (Patent No. 2,472,237) and other patents, is a scientific and effective method of retaining a rupture perfectly without surgery. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but also prevent its becoming a bed rest. It is a scientific method of operation and producing results in no other way obtainable. All cases are secure a lifetime as against further trouble or expense. Large or difficult cases of incisional rupture (following operations) especially solicited. This instrument received the gold award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescriptions, with distinguished personal testimonials of all nations.

"If you want done what the rest cannot do—see Seely." H. M. SEELY, representing F. H. SEELY, of Chicago and Philadelphia nationally famous expert, will be at the New Marten Hotel, and will remain in Lancaster, Pa., Tuesday only, Feb. 25. KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Sales of more than $3,000,000 worth of automobiles were reported at the end of Kansas City's annual motor show. The chamber of commerce officials advise that wholesale manufacturers of wearing apparel report sales increased from fifteen to twenty percent over year ago.

DENVER, Colo.—Huge road building programs in rocky mountain region to get under way within a few weeks. $10,000,000 available in Colorado for this purpose. Twenty million dollars appropriated in Montana—the greatest highway construction program in the history of the state.

Many new construction projects getting under way in New Mexico and Utah, giving employment to additional hundreds.

BOSTON—Reports to New England council from chambers commerce and trade associations in six New England states show industrial awakening. Forty new manufacturing plants began operation in past month. In shoe industry five new plants opened in Massachusetts and Maine. Two shoe plants returned to full time with substantial increase shown in employment that line. Two textile mills in Massachusetts and Rhode Island and one silk mill in Connecticut resume operation. Five textile mills report operating over time. Work started new million dollar saw and steel plant at Woburn, Mass. Massachusetts legislature tushing plans appropriate nearly twenty two million dollars for new public buildings, new truck highways, mosquito control on Cape Cod, clearing reservations of underbrush and forest improvements.

PITTSBURGH—Slight expansion in iron and steel industry reported. Decided spurt in steel buying for automobile industry.

FARMERS MUST HELP SELVES BY REDUCING THEIR CROPS

That the world market for American wheat is "hopeless," and that the farmer's only salvation is a sharp curbing of production, are the blunt and uncompromising conclusions of Alexander Legge, chairman of the Farm Board, after more than a year's intensive study of President Hoover's farm problems. He presents his informal report direct to the farmers of the country this week in the columns of The Country Home, an agricultural monthly which circulates largely in the so-called "farm belt."

"The government has backed the Farm Board with a fund of half a billion dollars," Mr. Legge says, "and the question now is, what has the Farm Board done with that money, and what does it hope to do for the farmer?"

"We started out 18 months ago. There were those who assured us there was no such thing as over-production, and others who insisted it was not the farmer's surplus but his too costly methods of production which caused his troubles."

"No over-production? Well, for 62 months without interruption the visible supply of wheat in this country has been greater than it was in the same month of the preceding year. In July, 1926, the surplus was around 100 million bushels. That was too much. But since then it has grown steadily until in July, 1930, it was 274 million bushels!"

"The world market for American wheat is pretty hopeless. Talk about present wheat prices being low—why, American farmers, to sell their wheat abroad now would have to accept 20 cents less than they are getting at home. The only thing that is keeping foreign wheat from coming into this country now is our tariff of 42 cents."

"I think it has been shown that the intelligent farmer with a one-family farm of say, 400 acres of land worked with modern equipment can raise wheat cheaply enough so that, as the racehorse people say, he 'will be in the money.' Of course, our farmers must lower their costs of production on wheat and corn like the men with the steel factories and the automobile factories. But they must also adjust their production to the potential demand. The farmer has never done that. He has listened to the orator who told him what a human benefactor he was when he 'made two blades grow where one grew before.'"

"It seems to be hard for the farmer to realize that he can make more by raising less. Of course,

Do You Want a Baby? Regular $1.00 Treatment sent free—one to each family

"I was married and longed for a baby every day and with all my heart, but was denied," writes Mrs. L. Scheller, Indiana, "so I went for your prescription. While taking the second box I was unable to express my happiness. I never had a sick day. I became the mother of a fine 8-2 pound baby. God only knew our joy. I hope every woman longing for motherhood will take your medicine. You are welcome to use this letter and picture for publication. Thank you."

"Married 11 years and doctors told me I would never have any children," writes Mrs. White, Pa. "I tried your medicine. Now I am to be a mother in October. My dearest wish realized."

Dr. Depew's treatment, a non-specific, based on Glandular activity, has been used with such results by thousands of women that for the next 30 days a full dollar treatment will be sent free postpaid, no C. O. D. no cost, no obligation, to every woman who writes.

A limited supply of free treatments will be sent out this month, so be sure and write today. Also a free booklet "Childless Marriages Explained" will be sent you. Simply send name, a postcard will do, and remedy will be mailed in plain wrapper. Dr. Depew believes you will be surprised and delighted. Address Dr. Depew, Suite C P D Coates House, Kansas City Mo.

(Written exclusively for International News Service by James W. Stuber, secretary of the Outdoor Writers Association of America.)

COLUMBUS, O.—Sportsmen of Ohio are about the only class of people who come to the legislature asking that their taxes be increased—that more tax be placed upon themselves, it was stated at the statehouse in Columbus when the universal anglers' license bill was introduced by Senator Roy Gillen of Wellston, Feb. 17.

The sportsmen are asking the legislature to do away with the anglers' license which now requires those who fish with rod and reel to buy a $1.00 license and pay the cost of upkeep of hatcheries and work of re-stocking, and in its place enact a license at $1.00 per year for all fishermen over the age of 18, exempting land-owners on their own lands.

The bill is advocated by the fishermen themselves. The league of Ohio Sportsmen, the Isaak Walton league and the Conservation Committee of the American Legion are solidly behind the universal anglers' license bill, it is stated by Former Senator Atwood, who drafted the measure.

It is estimated that the proposed bill will bring to the Division of Conservation between $300,000 and $400,000 per year to be used for rearing ponds, construction of lakes and dams, fish hatchery operation and re-stocking with game fish on a large scale.

Non-residents, under the provisions of the bill, will be required to pay $2.25 per year. At present all fishermen who fish with a cane pole including non-residents, are exempt. The cane-pole fishermen catch many times the number of fish that the rod and reel fishermen catch, according to the sportsmen's groups and the Legion men who are supporting the bill.

The rod and reel fishermen represent only one-eighth of the fishermen in Ohio. The rest of them are taking fish from Ohio waters and contributing nothing to upkeep or re-stocking, it is pointed out. Even the hunters' license money has been used through necessity, for the benefit of the large army of fishermen who have not been required to buy a license, it is said.

"If it's all take and no put, there will soon be no fishing in Ohio," Isaak Walton leaders declare. The whole plan is one of restoration and replacement. It is not a tax for fishing, it is a replacement fee."

to office solely on the crest of a national wave."

Those Republicans who object believe the nation's tendency in recent years to elect Republican presidents might well remain an aid to the Ohio G. O. P. in its campaign for state offices. To this protest Taft repeatedly reiterated that little real difference will be noticed.

Democrats declared, however, that they would have voted against the measure if it had not contained the off-presidential years clause.

BETTER RESULTS

Throughout his campaign for the bill, Senator Taft has argued that better state government will result if such a law is enacted. He has persistently declared that "the state is disgusted with so many elections." The 25 to 1 vote of adoption last night was, accordingly, a genuine triumph for his policy.

"Fly-by-night undertakers, crafty salesmen who take advantage of relatives of persons who die suddenly and unexpectedly," will be the losers, Senator James E. Finck (R) of Canal Winchester, declared, as a result of the senate passage of his bill requiring a licensing of funeral directors.

It does not assure a lower funeral price, the author said, but it provides a state board of embalmers and funeral directors which must license funeral directors as well as embalmers. This board will be careful to "clean up the profession and keep it ethical," Finck said. The vote was 24-0, Senator William H. Hener (R) of Monroeville being one of the speakers.

The Weber bill allowing common pleas court judges to perform marriages was adopted 26 to 0 and sent to the house a few minutes before adjournment last night.

Business Round Up Made

(Copyright, 1931, By International News Service)

A nationwide survey conducted by International News Service today showed that business generally throughout the country is decidedly on the upgrade.

From the New England states to the Pacific coast the reports showed a steady increase in employment, greater activity in almost all manufacturing lines and evidence of greater buying power everywhere.

The reports showed also that within the next few weeks many large construction projects, for which the money already has been appropriated, will get under way. The reports gathered by representatives of the International News Service follow:

NEW YORK CITY—National automobile chamber of commerce reports January production 193-876 autos and trucks shows an increase of 14 per cent over December. From 110,000 to 125,000 men replaced on payrolls of industry since Jan. 1.

Statisticians of F. W. Dodge corporation report that residence building contracts for 37 states east of Rockies during the first fifteen days of February total $42,153,400. If second half continues at that same rate will show an increase over last February of $10,600,000 and will be the first increase in a year.

Garment industry reports substantial increase in January over January a year ago.

CHICAGO—Accelerated production schedules in the key industries such as steel mills, clothing manufacturers, radio plants, automobile accessory factories and railroad shops have returned approximately ten thousand men to work here," said Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the association of commerce. "Indicative of the present trend of Chicago's industrial plants is the fact that of seven hundred and seventy-four typical factories only twenty-three are operating at levels considerably below their 1929 schedules."

"Low inventories in the hands of processors and distributors and reduced prices are making for some increased turnover and the business

MARGARINE BILL BEFORE SENATE

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—The case of "the Ohio cow versus the palm tree of the South Sea Islands" today passes into the hands of the Ohio Senate.

This unique appellation has been applied by Rep. D. W. Galehouse (R), of Marshallville, Wayne-co, to his bill, which passed the House Monday night, providing for stricter regulations regarding the amount of oleomargarine sold in Ohio and increasing the penalties for violators of these regulations.

INSURANCE MEN AT WILMINGTON

WILMINGTON, O., Feb. 24.—Approximately 60 agents from 15 southwestern Ohio counties are to gather here Wednesday to take part in a district meeting of the Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance Company, according to officials of the Clinton-co Farm Bureau. The sessions will be held in the New Marten hotel.

M. E. Foltz, superintendent of claims of the company; H. W. Smoots, sales manager, and L. J. Bennett, assistant sales manager, all of Columbus, will be the speakers.

The speakers and the agents will discuss new premium rates, 1931 sales plans and methods, the relation of agents to claims work, and the program and plans for the 1931 annual meeting of the company, to be held in Columbus, March 12 and 13.

The counties which will be represented are: Adams, Brown, Clinton, Highland, Pike, Scioto, Ross, Butler, Fayette, Greene, Hamilton, Warren, Pickaway, and Fairfield.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses, as they all set where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom larger than a dime (no matter the size of the rupture), and all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil.

The Spermatic Shield-Complex in combination with the Retaining-Slimplex (Patent No. 747,247 and other patents pending) is a scientific achievement in a highly specialized art. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contrives the opening in 10 to 15 days on the average. Infinitely superior to any instrument method or operation and producing results in no other way obtainable. All cases are secure a lifetime as against further trouble or expenses. Large or difficult cases or incisional rupture (following operations) especially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescriptions, with distinguished personal patrons of all nations.

"If you want done what the rest cannot do—see Seelye."

H. M. SEELYE, Representing P. H. SEELYE of Chicago and Philadelphia nationally famous expert, will be at the New Martin Hotel, and will remain in Lancaster, Pa., Tuesday only, Feb. 25. He will be glad to demonstrate without charge or fit them if desired.

in grain products show some improvement," James G. Murray, president of the Chicago board of trade declared.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Sales of more than $3,000,000 worth of automobiles were reported at the end of Kansas City's annual motor show. The chamber of commerce officials advise that wholesale manufacturers of wearing apparel report sales increased from fifteen to twenty percent over year ago.

DENVER, Colo.—Huge road building programs in rocky mountain region to get under way within a few weeks, $10,000,000 available in Colorado for this purpose. Twenty million dollars appropriated in Montana—the greatest highway construction program in the history of the state.

Many new construction projects getting under way in New Mexico and Utah, giving employment to additional hundreds.

BOSTON—Reports to New England council from chambers commerce and trade associations in six New England states show industrial awakening. Forty new manufacturing plants began operation in past month. In shoe industry five new plants opened in Massachusetts and Maine. Two shoe plants returned to full time with substantial increase shown in employment that line. Two textile mills in Massachusetts and Rhode Island and one silk mill in Connecticut resume operation. Five textile mills report operating over time. Work started new million dollar saw and steel plant at Fitchburg, Mass. Massachusetts legislature rushing plans appropriate nearly twenty two million dollars for new public buildings, new trunk highways, mosquito control on Cape Cod, clearing reservations of underbrush and forest improvements.

PITTSBURGH—Slight expansion in iron and steel industry reported. Decided spurt in steel buying for automobile industry.

Ladies Not Wanted

MANY bar associations exclude lady lawyers from their memberships, and in closing the door there is often a pronounced slam. It is no business of a newspaper to instruct lawyers in those niceties of conduct which should mark the relations of ladies and gentlemen. And yet old-fashioned, mid-Victorian souls cringe at the thought of such rude exhibitions and those who understand the modern woman wonder what indigestible matter has found its way into the craws of the male members of the legal profession.

Bar associations, as they are commonly understood, serve a two-fold purpose. Their first aim and object is to preserve the ethics and finer traditions of the profession of law. They serve as a sort of composite conscience for legal practitioners. Their other role is that of a fraternity, encouraging the social amenities through such polite intercourse as dinners, smokers, outings and other frolics.

Since modern Portias are eligible professionally and ethically for membership there remains only the social implications as a stumbling block for dainty feet. And yet that need not be. The girls are broadminded nowadays. They can puff a weed with the sangfroid of a stevedore. They can listen to a funny story or tell one and be nonchalant. Such is their gregariousness, their camaraderie, their lack of sex-consciousness that the stag party has become an anachronism. Modern women do not spoil parties.

Can it be that the barristers have had their noses buried in dusty tomes so long that they have not noticed the emancipation and sophistication of their sisters in the law?

Prosperity Nostrums

EVERY time there is a period of serious financial and economic stringency, when the world business and industrial structure is suffering from over-expansion and over-production, it provides opportunity for the vendors of quick financial remedies to emerge with their cures. Scarcely a day passes but that newspaper readers are informed of some one who has discovered a short way back to prosperity.

Unfortunately these discoveries are of no practical value. Few of them have any real curative powers, and these create two sores for every one they heal. Usually such cures are prescribed without regard to their general effect.

Just now the world is suffering from two major ailments—over-production in the United States and Europe and political and social unrest in the Orient and South America. Coming together, these maladies have reduced a major crisis.

There is no way back to prosperity except through the restoration of business and political stability throughout the world. And nostrums cannot accomplish that.

Nations will do well to be wary of depression cure-alls. They are in a class with get-rich-quick schemes. Prosperity is the wages of hard work, not of chance or following the directions of untried patent medicines.

Migrating Gold

THE federal reserve banking system maintains a gold settlement fund in Washington to eliminate gold shipments from one reserve to another. Gold owned in varying proportions by the 12 federal reserve banks is held in the vaults of the treasury. And when one bank has a claim for gold upon another the custodians of the fund are notified and the transfer is made on paper without the gold leaving the treasury.

Such a system on an international scale is proposed as part of the Young plan and the Bank for International Settlements at Basel, Switzerland, has a committee at work on the scheme. International claims for gold against central banks are now met by gold shipments and there is almost always a great amount of gold in transit. An international gold settlement fund would eliminate these shipments.

Chief among the obstacles to the plan are the questions of security and banking prestige. The central banks of the world might object for these reasons.

Establishment of such an international fund will be hastened by the concentration of gold in a few

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

After giving up Mat Tully because he is poor, Nancy Hollenbeck encourages the attentions of Jack Beamer, wealthy sportsman. Jack plans to divorce his wife and marry Nancy. On a mountain trip, Nancy falls in love with Roger Decatur, handsome ranger. She leaves her chaperones, the wealthy Porters, and secretly goes with Roger. Nancy is happy in Roger's cabin, but when he leaves on a trip, the loneliness is unbearable and she returns home. She continues to keep her marriage a secret. Jack Beamer sends flowers. Nancy and her sister, Lou, attend the engagement party of May Belle Craig. Nancy longs for Roger. Beamer arrives and monopolizes her. Nancy repulses Beamer's advances. Lou is thrilled by Mat Tully's attentions. At home, Nancy's letters from Roger arouse her mother's suspicions. Mat takes Lou to the opera. Nancy is worried over Beamer's persistence.

CHAPTER XXX.

"ROGER, darling I miss you more than I ever dreamed I could miss anyone in the world," Nancy wrote, blotting the ink with her tears.

Whenever she thought of Roger, so far away, she wanted to cry, and whenever she thought of going back to him in the cabin she wanted to cry, too. Her finger nails, grown shiny and pink again, fascinated her. She spent hours polishing them, rubbing cream into her hands. Thinking about the cabin. The stove that didn't draw. The black flying pan. Bacon grease. Scum on the dish water. If she could only get him away from the mountains.

She tried to talk it over with Lou. "Lou, wouldn't it be nice if Roger Decatur were down here?"

"Who?"

"My ranger!"

"Oh, I always think of him as the ranger."

"You needn't! He's a gentleman, even if he is a ranger!"

"Why, Nancy! I wasn't shocking him. Nor his job. Do you know, if I were a man I believe I'd go in for forestry myself!"

Feeling Her Way

Nancy's eager face clouded. She began to polish the nails of one hand on the pink palm of the other. "Humph! Forestry! Large work and small pay. Buried in the sticks."

"That's not mind. For that matter, neither would I!"

The tears, never far from the surface, welled into Nancy's eyes again. "I don't believe you would! But I would! I'd hate it!"

Lou was looking out of the window, a curious, far-away look in her eyes. "I wouldn't hate anything with the man I loved. I'd go anywhere to be near him," she said dreamily.

"Oh, well, you can afford to be romantic. You aren't in love with anyone. Wait till you see a ranger you live!"

Lou continued to stare out of the window. Her cheeks were burning.

"You know I did like that ranger, Lou!"

Silence from the window.

"Lou, he'd look wonderful in evening clothes. I thought of him at May Belle's party. There wasn't a man there who would hold a candle to him, not even Jack Beamer!"

"Humph! Jack Beamer?"

"Oh, well, you can't talk to Lou, she thought disconsolately. Lou's a man hater. Always was, and always will be!"

She began another letter to Roger. No use trying to get along without him. She'd tried, and she couldn't.

"Hollenbeck? Sign here,"

Nancy sighed. She accepted the big, striped box gingerly, as if it had been a bomb, likely to go off.

countries and the heavy shipments of gold ever since the war. The advantages might outweigh the objection of the international bankers.

at any moment. The fourth in four days. This would have to stop. Things couldn't go on like this.

"More flowers?" Papa looked up over his spectacles.

Nancy giggled helplessly. "Is it a joke, or a bet, or what?"

"I think it's a joke. He must have put in an order at a florist and forgot to stop it. I wish to goodness he'd keep them," she said, poking "it" fingers that were gentle in spite of her at the waxy green paper that covered Jack Beamer's unwelcome gift. Pansies. Baby roses. Gardenias. They looked at her with innocent sweetness. In the movies girls throw away flowers from men they don't like. Nancy always ended by loving hers, and cutting the stems to make them last.

"You ought to speak to him about it," Papa said, squinting at them.

"Your mother won't like that, that matchless little niece. Kind of like the country."

Reminders

Kind of like the country... like the woods... Roger's woods. She laid a piece of it against her lips, breathing in its good green smell.

Maybe she could talk to papa! She looked at him with mounting excitement. Maybe he'd understand Papa, who read the sport page from beginning to end every night and was always talking about crack shots and prize fighters, and men who spend eighteen hours in the saddle. Surely he'd appreciate Roger.

She came and curled up on the arm of his chair.

"Well, Nancy girl?"

How pretty she was! It was worth it. How pretty she was! It was worth it. How pretty she was! It was worth it.

They were bills. The plumber's bill for the new bathroom faucet that was put in last December lay on top, and underneath one older than that. Dr. Deming's bill for Lou's tonsils; he took them out nearly two years ago.

"Well, Nancy girl, what do you want—a new hat?"

Nancy had the grace to blush. "I don't want anything," she said quickly. "Papa, you should wear a collar that's all frayed like that! It's a disgrace. And that awful necktie!"

He grinned. "No one is going to look at an old fellow like me. Not while I have a couple of pretty girls like you looking at me!"

"I don't want anything," she said quickly. "Papa, you should wear a collar that's all frayed like that! It's a disgrace. And that awful necktie!"

would listen—mama or Louise—"What! Your mother would not!"

"No, not really. You know how mama is. Just because it wasn't anyone she knew she wouldn't take it seriously and—"

Papa was beginning to get nervous. This wasn't what he had expected at all. He glanced apprehensively toward the kitchen door.

"Just because he's a ranger she won't believe that I'm really in love with him, and—"

"Shh! Wasn't that your mother coming?"

"No, I don't think so. Pops, you wouldn't mind a ranger for a son-in-law, would you? He's wonderful looking. Nearly as good, and brown as an Indian. It's funny, too, with his light hair and blue eyes. And ride! Anything with four legs. He's so strong he could pick me up with one hand. He has, for that matter. But he's the most—"

He stopped her at last. "Now, now, you don't want to lose your head over some fellow you met on a summer vacation. I suppose you met him this summer?"

"Yes, but it's no summer romance. From the first minute we met—"

"Shh! What would your mother say?" He craned his neck over the doorway, looking anxiously toward the door. No sign of Kitty. He relaxed a little. Looked at his lovely daughter with love and pity. A babe she was, getting all stirred up over some good-looking cowpuncher. The fellow probably put an arm around her some moonlight night. He knew. He was a young man not so long ago.

Tenderly he smiled at the quivering girl. Gently he pinched her cheek. "So that's why you stayed away from your dad so long, eh? Having an affair with a cowpuncher, eh?"

"Well, his manner changed. He became the kindest, zariouss Peter Hollenbeck. He knew at the bank 'That's all right. But—that's not the kind of man to marry. Nancy. In three months the romance would be gone and what would be left, eh?"

"Now you take care of the younger men in business. Take Frank Haworth, frinstance. Solid, substantial citizen. Makes approximately three hundred per month."

Papa dug a peach out of his pocket, wrote a check for the price of an old envelope, and handed it to her.

"Not a great sum, I grant you, but you could save five hundred the first year, at four and a quarter per cent."

Money Talks

Mama came in and sat down. Picked up the book Nancy had been reading. "Anna Karenina," she said. "Why do you read such outlandish things? You fill your head with crazy ideas."

Papa went on figuring. "Cm-pounding the interest—"

Nancy continued to lean on the arm of his chair. The meaningless figure multiplied under her nose. She thought wildly of calling a taxi and starting back to the mountains tonight. But she was too tired and the family wouldn't believe it anyway. They'd think she was going to see May Belle. Or the Porter girls.

What was the matter with them? Why couldn't they see what was going on all around them? Papa was giving her bills, paying the one two dollars on the first, then one ten on the fifteenth. Getting deeper and deeper into debt, shabbier and shabbier. Mama snooping and poking and prying into things, and getting more off the track every minute.

There they sat, elderly innocents giving her credit, while the minute Jack Beamer's wife might drag her into the divorce court, or she might go back to the hills and hide.

Shakily, almost tearfully, she began to laugh.

"Now what is it?"

"Nothing."

She was really thinking: What a surprise if I have a chad!

This angered Norris and other senators and Mr. Hoover was asked to return the nomination papers of the commissioners for reorganization. The President refused. Because such procedure was illegal and was upheld by the attorney general. Then the Senate reconsidered the nominations again, confirmed all but that of Smith and passed a resolution authorizing the court action. Meanwhile Smith resigned King because of his wide knowledge of the work, but refused to appoint Russell.

The Senate claims the constitution gives it authority to remove its confirmation of any officer within two sessions of the date after confirmation is made.

Ladies Not Wanted

MANY bar associations exclude lady lawyers from their memberships, and in closing the door there is often a pronounced slam. It is no business of a newspaper to instruct lawyers in those niceties of conduct which should mark the relations of ladies and gentlemen. And yet old-fashioned, mid-Victorian souls cringe at the thought of such rude exhibitions and those who understand the modern woman wonder what indigestible matter has found its way into the craws of the male members of the legal profession.

Bar associations, as they are commonly understood, serve a two-fold purpose. Their first aim and object is to preserve the ethics and finer traditions of the profession of law. They serve as a sort of composite conscience for legal practitioners. Their other role is that of a fraternity, encouraging the social amenities through such polite intercourse as dinners, smokers, outings and other frolics.

Since modern Portias are eligible professionally and ethically for membership there remains only the social implications as a stumbling block for dainty feet. And yet that need not be. The girls are broadminded nowadays. They can puff a weed with the sangfroid of a stevedore. They can listen to a funny story or tell one and be nonchalant. Such is their gregariousness, their camaraderie, their lack of sex-consciousness that the stag party has become an anachronism. Modern women do not spoil parties. Can it be that the barristers have had their noses buried in musty tomes so long that they have not noticed the emancipation and sophistication of their sisters in the law?

Prosperity Nostrums

EVERY time there is a period of serious financial and economic stringency, when the world business and industrial structure is suffering from over-expansion and over-production, it provides opportunity for the vendors of quack financial remedies to emerge with their cures. Scarcely a day passes but that newspaper readers are informed of some one who has discovered a short way back to prosperity.

Unfortunately these discoveries are of no practical value. Few of them have any real curative powers, and these create too sores for every one they heal. Usually such cures are prescribed without regard to their general effect.

Just now the world is suffering from two major ailments—over-production in the United States and Europe and political and social unrest in the Orient and South America. Coming together, these maladies have reduced a major crisis.

There is no way back to prosperity except through the restoration of business and political stability throughout the world. And nostrums cannot accomplish that.

Nations will do well to be wary of depression cure-alls. They are in a class with get-rich-quick schemes. Prosperity is the wages of hard work, not of chance or following the directions of untried patent medicines.

Migrating Gold

THE federal reserve banking system maintains a gold settlement fund in Washington to eliminate gold shipments from one reserve to another. Gold owned in varying proportions by the 12 federal reserve banks is held in the vaults of the treasury, and when one bank has a claim for gold upon another the fund is notified and the transfer is made on paper without the gold leaving the treasury.

Such a system on an international scale is proposed as part of the Young plan and the Bank for International Settlements at Basle, Switzerland, has a committee at work on the scheme. International claims for gold against central banks, not balanced by counter claims, are now met by gold shipments, and there is almost always a great amount of gold in transit. An international gold settlement fund would eliminate these shipments.

Chief among the obstacles to the plan are the questions of security and banking prestige. The central banks of the world might object for these reasons.

Establishment of such an international fund will be hastened by the concentration of gold in a few

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

After giving up Mat Tully because he is poor, Nancy Hollenbeck encourages the attentions of Jack Beamer, wealthy sportsman. Jack plans to divorce his wife and marry Nancy. On a mountain trip, Nancy falls in love with Roger Decatur, handsome ranger. She leaves her chaperones, the wealthy Porters, and secretly marries Roger. Nancy is happy with Roger in his rough mountain cabin, but when he leaves on a trip, the loneliness is unbearable and she returns home. She continues to keep her marriage a secret. Jack Beamer sends flowers, and Nancy and her sister, Lou, attend the engagement party of May Belle Craig. Nancy longs for Roger. Beamer arrives and monopolizes her. Nancy repulses Beamer's advances. Lou is thrilled by Mat Tully's attentions. At home, Nancy's letters from Roger arouse her mother's suspicions. Mat takes Lou to the opera. Nancy is worried over Beamer's persistence.

CHAPTER XXX.

"ROGER, darling I miss you more than I ever dreamed I could miss anyone in the world," Nancy wrote, blotting the ink with her tears.

Whenever she thought of Roger, so far away, she wanted to cry, and whenever she thought of going back to him in the cabin she wanted to cry, too. Her finger nails, grown shiny and pink again, fascinated her. She spent hours polishing them, rubbing cream into her hands. Thinking about the cabin. The stove that didn't draw. The black flying pan. Bacon grease. Scum on the dish water. If she could only get him away from the mountains...

She tried to talk it over with Lou. "Lou, wouldn't it be nice if Roger Decatur were down here?" "Who?" "My ranger!" "Oh, I always think of him as the ranger."

"You needn't! He's a gentleman, even if he is a ranger!" "Why, Nancy, I wasn't knocking him. Nor his job. Do you know, if I were a man I believe I'd go in for forestry myself."

Feeling Her Way

Nancy's eager face clouded. She began to polish the nails of one hand on the pink palm of the other. "Humph! Forestry! Large work and small pay. Buried in the sticks."

"They don't mind. For that matter, neither would I!" The tears, never far from the surface, welled into Nancy's eyes again. "I don't believe you would! But I would! I'd hate it!"

Lou was looking out of the window, a curious, far-away look in her eyes. "I wouldn't have anything with the man I loved. I'd go anywhere to be near him," she said dreamily.

"Oh, well, you can afford to be romantic. You aren't in love with anyone. Wait till you see a ranger you like."

Lou continued to stare out of the window. Her cheeks were burning. "You know I did like that ranger, Lou."

"Lou, he'd look wonderful in evening clothes. I thought of him at May Belle's party. There wasn't a man there who would hold a candle to him, not even Jack Beamer."

"Humph! Jack Beamer?" "Oh, well, you can't talk to Lou, she thought disconsolately. Lou's a man hater. Always was, and always will be!"

She began another letter to Roger. No use trying to get along without him. She'd tried, and she couldn't. "Hollenbeck? Sign here, please."

Nancy sighed. She accepted the big, striped box gingerly, as if it had been a bomb, likely to go off at any moment. The fourth in four days. This would have to stop. Things couldn't go on like this.

"More flowers?" Papa looked up over his spectacles. Nancy giggled helplessly. "Is it a joke, or a bet, or what?"

"I think it's a mistake. He must have put in an order at a florist, and forgot to stop it. I wish to goodness he'd keep them," she said, poking with fingers that were gentle in spite of her at the waxy green paper that covered Jack Beamer's unwelcome gift. Pansies. Baby roses. Gardenias. They looked at her with innocent sweetness. In the movies girls throw away flowers from men they don't like. Nancy always ended by loving hers, and cutting the stems to make them last.

"You ought to speak to him about it," papa said, squinting at them. "Your mother won't like it... that maidenhair smells nice. Kind of like the country."

Reminders

Kind of like the country... like the woods... Roger's woods... She laid a piece of it against her lips, breathing in its good green smell.

Maybe she could talk to papa! She looked at him with mounting excitement. Maybe he'd understand. Papa, who read the sport page from beginning to end every night and was always talking about crack shots and prize fighters, and men who spend eighteen hours in the saddle. Surely he'd appreciate Roger.

She came and curled up on the arm of his chair. "Well, Nancy girl?" "How pretty she was! It was worth it... worth all the drudgery and disappointment and failure to have a girl like that! What a smile, all her headches, Louise got her headches, he took them out nearly two years ago."

"Well, Nancy girl, what do you want—a new hat?" "I don't want anything," she said quickly. "Papa, you shouldn't wear a collar that all frayed like that! It's a disgrace. And that awful necktie!"

He grinned. "No one is going to look at an old fellow like me. Not while I have a couple of pretty girls they can look at instead."

"A couple of big, bulging, lazy loafers, that's what we are! Especially me! Running up bills on you when we ought to be out working or something—"

"Tut, tut. Nonsense. But she said that he was pleased. And then, warningly. "Shh. Your mother will hear. She has one of her headches. Louise got her headches, he took them out nearly two years ago."

"It's about time one of us did something. Piling up the bills—"

"Oh, that! He pushed the little pile of them out of sight, smiled at her with false brightness. "That's nothing. I wouldn't feel I was a father if I didn't have a few bills. First thing I know, though, some young fellow will have the job away from me, eh, baby?"

Her heart leaped. She laid her cheek against his. "Maybe, I've been thinking... papa, you won't mind?"

"Mind? Why, I want you to be happy, that's all—" He fumbled for the clean, folded kerchief he always kept in his coat pocket, and wiped his glasses, scowling at them critically. "Papa, you old sweetheart, I knew you'd understand!" Nancy's eyes were swimming. The torrent of words she had been holding back for weeks bubbled to her lips. "I've wanted to tell it for so long, and I haven't dared, and nobody would listen—mama or Louise—" "What! Your mother would not?"

"No, not really. You know how mama is. Just because it wasn't anyone she knew she wouldn't take it seriously and—"

Papa was beginning to get nervous. This wasn't what he had expected at all. He glanced apprehensively toward the kitchen door. "Just because he's a ranger she won't believe that I'm really in love with him, and—"

"Shh! Wasn't that your mother coming?" "No, I don't think so. Papa, you wouldn't mind a ranger for a son-in-law, would you? He's wonderful looking. Nearly six feet, and brown as an Indian. It's funny, with his light hair and blue eyes. And ruddy! Anything with four legs. He's so strong he could pick me up with one hand. He has, for that matter. But he's the most—"

He stopped her at last. "Now, now, you don't want to lose your head over some fellow you met on a Summer vacation. I suppose you met him this Summer?"

"Yes, out it's no Summer romance. From the first minute we met—"

"Shh! What would your mother say?" He craned his neck over the ward door, looking anxiously toward the door. No sign of Kitty. He relaxed a little. Looked at his lovely daughter with love and pity. What a babe she was, getting all stirred up over some good-looking cowpuncher. The fellow probably put an arm around her some moonlight night. He knew. He was a young man not so long ago.

Tenderly he smiled at the quivering girl. Gently he pinched her cheek. "So that's why you stayed away from your dad so long, eh? Having an affair with a cowpuncher, eh? Well..." His manner changed. Peter Hollenbeck, the garrulous Peter Hollenbeck, who knew at the bank "That's all right. But—that's not the kind of man to marry. Nancy. In three months the romance would be gone and what would be left, eh?"

"Now you take any of the younger men in the office. Take Frank Haworth, for instance. Solid, substantial citizen. Makes approximately three hundred per month."

Papa dug a pencil out of his pocket, wrote neatly on the back of an old envelope, "$300."

"That's a good sum. But granting that you could save five hundred the first year, at four and a quarter per cent—"

Money Talks

Mama came in and sat down. Picked up the book Nancy had been reading. "Anna Karenina" had been reading. "Dr. Dowling's bill for Lou's tonsils; he took them out nearly two years ago."

"Well, Nancy girl, what do you want—a new hat?" "I don't want anything," she said quickly. "Papa, you shouldn't wear a collar that all frayed like that! It's a disgrace. And that awful necktie!"

He grinned. "No one is going to look at an old fellow like me. Not while I have a couple of pretty girls they can look at instead."

DAVIS LEADS FIGHT AGAINST APPOINTMENT OF HOOVER'S

WASHINGTON. — John W. Davis, who led Democratic party for four years following his defeat in its presidential candidate, in 1924, will lead the fight of an insurgent sweep Republican Senate to try to force one of President Hoover's appointees from office.

He was selected by the Senate judiciary committee to institute "quo-warranto" proceedings in District of Columbia supreme court against George Otis Smith, of Maine, who is holding office as chairman of the newly re-organized federal power commission.

Davis divides his time between his homes in Clarksburg, W. Va., and in New York City and will be 58 April 13.

Several senators predicted Davis would present a spectacular attack on Mr. Hoover's contention that the Senate was trying to encroach upon his executive authority, and that the U. S. supreme court might be asked to finally decide the case.

Smith and Commissioners Garzaud, of Louisiana, and Draper, of Wyoming, were confirmed by the Senate before the Christmas recess and soon as Smith took office he discharged Charles A. Russell, solicitor, and William V. King, chief accountant, of the old commission. "For the good of the service"

This angered Norris and other senators and Mr. Hoover was asked to return the nomination papers of the commissioners for reconsideration. The President refused, declaring such procedure was illegal and was upheld by the attorney general. Then the Senate reconsidered the nominations again, confirmed all but that of Smith and passed a resolution authorizing the court action. Meanwhile Smith reinstated King "because of his wide knowledge of the work" but refused to reappoint Russell.

The Senate claims the constitution gives it authority to reconsider its confirmation of appointees within two executive sessions after confirmation is made.

DALLAS, Tex.—New east Texas oil field discovery leads to big activity. New developments costing $5,000,000 started. Pipe lines costing $15,000,000 to be constructed. Two major railroads serving territory called hundreds of men back to work. Residents of five counties, enriched by lease money, rebuilding homes, improving property, giving employment to hundreds of idle men.

One of the surest ways of cutting corn production costs is by the purchase of good, tested, adapted seed of known yielding ability.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

You'll laugh until your sides ache! You'll fall head over heels in love! For Maurice Chevalier brings all of his marvelous, whimsical love-and-laugh-making talent to his rich role in "Playboy of Paris," the feature at the Cliftona theater Wednesday and Thursday.

As a waiter, Chevalier turns work into play; as a millionaire playboy, in the brilliant French capital, he turns play into a riot of romance. Three women are trying to capture him for a soul mate, but Maurice wants to love them all and let it go at that.

A brilliant supporting cast, headed by that luscious light-olive, Frances Dee, and including O. P. Heggie, Stuart Erwin and genial Eugene Pallette, aid the smiling lothario to keep the laughter at a high pitch.

AT THE GRAND

Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson, known as "America's funniest clowns," make their talking picture debut in, "Oh Sailor Behave!" Warner Bros. special Vitaphone production which comes to the Grand theater next Wednesday.

Famed for their laugh-provoking tomfoolery and mad antics, Olsen and Johnson provide the comedy touches—and they are many—in this colorful story of love and intrigue beneath Italian skies. They enact the roles of two American sailors ostensibly on the look-out for a man with a wooden leg, but actually yearning for nothing but mischief. Naturally both become enamored of the same pretty girl, and their attempts to win her are hilariously funny.

Most 'White Collar' Workers Eat Too Much for Lunch Says Authority, Thereby Overtaxing Digestive Organs Weakened by Lack of Strenuous Activity

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., United States Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A FEW nights ago I had dinner with a prominent Judge. He says he is forty-nine, but looks ten years younger.

Whether I am in the mood or not, everybody talks to me about health. The Judge did and told me what he does to keep fit.

No matter how late he gets home he disrobes and exercises for several minutes in front of an open window.

Open window. Open window. Open window. Open window. Open window. Open window. Open window. Open window. Open window. Open window.

That would be dangerous for an older man and, until it becomes a habit, would be pretty strenuous for a younger one. But since it is the custom of years I have no doubt it is good for my friend.

It would be a splendid thing for everybody to take deep-breathing exercises in front of an open window. Such resting-up exercises that these would be a health promoter for

Answers to Health Queries
R. S. Q.—What do you advise for ears left by pimples?
A.—To make the scars less noticeable, apply hot and cold compresses alternately for ten minutes night and morning. X-Ray is also helpful.

M. C. Q.—What do you advise for falling hair?
A.—Brush the hair daily and use a good tonic. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

B. H. Q.—What causes a coated tongue?
A.—This is usually due to constipation.

M. D. Q.—Is boracic acid a good eye wash?
A.—Yes.
2.—Which is best for reducing, dieting or exercise?
A.—Both are essential for proper results.

M. E. D. Q.—Are cigarettes harmful to a growing boy or girl? Will they cause one to remain thin? In what way are they especially harmful?
A.—Not necessarily although it would be better to cultivate the habit later on when the full growth has been attained. No excessive smoking affects the nervous system at this in turn affects the system in general.

CATS CLINCH BIG 10 RACE

Defeat Minnesota Badly; Purdue Beats Michigan; Ohio Loses to Wisconsin.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—Having administered a crushing 45 to 16 defeat to Minnesota, runner-up for ivarsity's basketball team today Big Ten honors, Northwestern University's basketball team today was assured of at least a tie for the Western Conference championship. Last night's game, played before 12,200 persons in the Gopher field-house at Minneapolis, left Northwestern leading the Big Ten with nine victories and one defeat. Minnesota with seven wins and three defeats, holds second position. Only in the event that Minnesota wins its remaining two games and Northwestern lost its remaining two will a tie for the championship result.

Playing with an unexpected power and precision the Northwestern five went into an early lead, ending the first half with a 20 to 9 edge over the Gopher five.

Bert Riel, Northwestern's right forward, was individual star of the game scoring seven field goals and five free-throws for a total of 19 points.

The ferocity of Northwestern's attack apparently baffled the Gopher defense.

In another of the four conference games last night Purdue ran over Michigan, 30 to 21, at Lafayette, Ind. John Wooden and Harry Keller, Purdue's co-captains, rattled the Wolverine defensive efforts.

At Madison, Wis., Wisconsin's thrice-rebuilt team staved off an Ohio State rally to defeat the Buckeye five by a 28 to 24 margin. A stubborn defense and an uncanny accuracy on the free throwline gave Wisconsin the victory. The Badgers dropped in eleven fouls goals straight before missing one.

Illinois continued its climb up the Big Ten percentage ladder by defeating Indiana, 39 to 25, at Bloomington, Ind. The Illini avenged a former defeat by riding rough-shod over the Hoosiers. E. Kamp led the Illinois team's scoring with 11 points. Owen scored five times from the field.

Big Ten standings:

	W	L	Pct.
Northwestern	9	1	.900
Minnesota	7	3	.700
Michigan	5	4	.553
Purdue	5	4	.556
Illinois	5	5	.500
Indiana	4	5	.444
Wisconsin	4	6	.400
Chicago	3	5	.375
Ohio State	2	6	.250
Iowa	2	7	.222

SPEED CHAMP AGAIN ENTERS

Billy Arnold to Defend His Title at Indianapolis Races This Year.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 24.—Billy Arnold, youthful American speedway champion and winner of the 1930 500-mile race, will defend his title in the International race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, in May, it was definitely announced.

"The story that Billy will retire is positively unfounded", declared Harry Hartz, owner of the car which Arnold drove to victory here last year and which the boy speed-star will pilot again in the coming race.

"But it has many a new gadget to make it faster this year", says Hartz, the entrant of the mount. "You'll recall it was a front wheel 500-mile race victory for this type of car—and we were only sixty-five hundredths of a mile an hour slower than the record of 107.13 miles an hour set by Pete De Paolo in 1925."

"We should have beaten the record last May—and would have had it not been for the six car jam in the north turn which held Arnold to minimum speed for many laps. This year the record is a cinch to shatter. We've been working on the car all winter and it is really fast."

Hartz, himself a great driver who was second three times and fourth twice in Indianapolis races, intended to drive the car last May. But a leg injury, sustained in an Eastern race, which kept him off the track for more than a year, made it necessary for him to choose a substitute.

Arnold, a youngster with a heap of driving experience, was among those being considered. Hartz, a shrewd business man as well as an astute racing strategist, asked Arnold what terms he would expect to drive the car which Hartz, one of the best mechanics who ever touched a wrench to a race creation, had ready for the time trials.

"I'd drive that car for nothing," snapped Arnold. And he was sent to the post. Arnold and Hartz made a great winning combination Hartz remained in the pits and directed the campaign of the courageous Arnold who went sweeping through the field as the race progressed. At the finish Hartz, who had sat in the pit all day was more exhausted than Arnold who had been driving. "It was an awful strain", laughed Hartz. "I was afraid something might break."

A giant lobster, which weighed 24 1-2 pounds and measured 4 feet in length, was caught just off Montauk Point by Capt. A. O. Lawrence, of New London, Conn.

Nostrums never lack a good market.

"It" Tells What You Are.

The motion pictures have invested with a new meaning the colorless little word "it." Nowadays we associate "it" with attractiveness of personality—a spontaneous quality that impels admiration and enthusiasm.

A home can have "it" just as surely and just as recognizably as a film star. But with this difference: a person may be born with "it"—a home must acquire "it" through the good taste and thoughtful care of the homeowner.

The amount of charm and appeal in your home does not, nowadays, depend upon the lavishness of your expenditure for furnishings. A modest investment, skillfully planned, will work miracles. If your surroundings have lost their youthful pep and looks—if some of the pieces seem due for retirement—bring your problem to us. You will find inspiration and "it" in plenty in our displays of smart new furniture, floor coverings and accessories.

Perhaps one or two new pieces, with a variation in the arrangement and grouping, will enhance your home's quota of "it." Perhaps a new color scheme, based on one of the favored new tones in draperies and upholstery fabrics, will supply the missing ingredient. In any event you're sure to find a visit to us worth while. We'll be happy to welcome you soon.

How does your home TELL what you are? Just watch for the discussion that will take place next Tuesday.

Without a question of a doubt Mrs. Karl Herrmann and Mrs. Jack Kirwin have the greatest step-savers in their kitchens that it is possible for a housewife to have. You see, both of these ladies have the newest model of Estate Gas Range—the model K—in their homes. It is not only a thing of beauty, but is a joy forever, being such a saver of steps. And why shouldn't this wonderful range save steps? The top of the oven is level with the cooking top, and serves as a work-table. The salt and pepper shakers are within easy reach of the cook. In fact, she can reach them without moving her feet. Working tools, such as cake turners, spatulas, large forks, paring knives, can-openers, and a number of other useful items, are part of the equipment that comes with the range and are located in a conveniently arranged drawer just under the cooking top. But, it's too long a story to tell here, we want you to drop in and let us show you the many fine things about the Model K Estate. In the meantime, if you see either of the two ladies, we feel sure that they would be glad to tell you how well it works and bakes.

A certain young thing who had been playing peewee golf on Bill Hamilton's course at the C. A. C., complimented him recently by saying, "Really, this game seems good enough to be played on a larger scale."

Well, well, ain't we stepping to the front in the business affairs of our fair state of Ohio, U. S. A.? Of course, by "we" we mean this city of ours. First, the Ohio Canners wanted a good president so they elected a Circleville man, Mr. Howard Orr. And then, the Ohio Bottlers needed a good man to "pep" up their organization and they elected another Circleville man, our own Coca-Cola King, Frank Lynch. But, when it came to finding the best taster and judge of canned foods, the Ohio Canners found him right here in old Roundtown—"Dad" (Ralph) Himrod. Our hat is off to you boys, you're putting the old burg on the map.

The other day, last Friday to be exact, a certain elderly gentleman told H. G. that he wished that he had listened to us when he purchased a mattress. We tried to sell him a GOOD one, but he wouldn't pay the price. Now, he is wishing that he had followed our suggestion. For the benefit of the rest of our readers, and this gentleman also, let us tell you that we have secured the greatest value in mattresses that we have ever been privileged to offer for sale. It's a real honest-to-gosh inner-spring mattress, made by Stearns & Foster, upholstered in damask, tailored to a queen's taste, with sleeping qualities fit for a king, that formerly sold for $39.50, but we are offering it to cash buyers for only $23.50. It's a trifle higher for credit, due to extra costs of carrying the account. Now, all of you folks that have been wishing that you had a better mattress come rushing in and pick out your color—either green or orchid—while the picking is good. Don't blame us if you are too late, for we do not know how long this low price will prevail.

The above "paragraphe" reminded us that a lady was recently in the store and told us to come to her home and measure an old cord bed for a new box spring mattress. Of course, we were very thankful for this order, but the best part of it is that this same lady purchased a box spring from us three years ago. It has proven so satisfactory that she wants another one. In this home, all beds will be equipped for real sleeping when she gets the new box mattress.

She was sitting in a dark corner. Noiselessly he stole up behind her, and before she was aware of his presence he had kissed her.

"How dare you?" she shrieked. "Pardon me," he bluffed, readily, "I thought you were my sister."

"You dumb ox. I am your sister." And, the story goes, he fainted. Who wouldn't?

What ever you do, don't forget to see those $39.50 mattresses that we are selling for $23.50. Remember, these are not CHEAP mattresses, but are of high quality cut in down in price due to a good buy in damasks made by the factory, the well-known Stearns & Foster plant.

STYLE for the Children, too

Parents like to see their children well dressed—and they should be. It is no longer necessary to buy coarse shoes to stand up under the rough and tough service of the active boy or girl; for into our good Poll-Parrot shoes, a product of the "Star Brand" shoemakers, is built the kind of materials that stand rugged service.

And another thing—here at our store we have the standing rule that all shoes must be accurately fitted, and this especially applies to the children's shoes, for the fit of the shoes is as important as the kind they wear.

Let us show you.
